HOW ANIME INFLUENCED THE WORLD

Comic Books, Films and Fan Meetings

Manga and anime were part of the Japanese pop culture long before they became popular in the USA and Europe. The word manga goes back to the late 18th century in Japan, but this type of comics didn't begin to be popular in the United States until the 1960s, when the famous Japanese anime series Astro Boy was imported to the U.S.

We are often asked the difference between manga and anime. They are both very important to Japanese culture, but the two are not the same thing. Manga is the name given to Japanese comic books and graphic novels and anime is the name given to Japanese animation (cartoon movies). The art style is important in anime films: cartoons generally have big eyes and great hairstyles.

Anime is a fantastic way to tell a story in animated form. However, in the last years, anime has become more than just animation films. More and more people around the world have become anime fans. Talking about anime, how can we forget Pokemon, those fine little pocket monsters? Nintendo's multi-billion-dollar Pokemon game was helped greatly by the anime series that, first on Japanese television in the late 1990s, is still on TV all over the world to this day. Thanks to Pokemon, anime has had a great influence on Western culture.

Imagination is a very important part of anime—everything is possible!—, and we can see that use of imagination has had its influence on many artists around the world from music, movies, and animation. The best films of the last years have taken ideas from anime. It has also influenced many famous people like actors and sports people. For example, film star Megan Fox loves Sailor Moon and she would like to be an actress in that series. Showman Hulk Hogan is a fan of Pokemon and he was seen playing a Pokemon game on a show.

Thanks to the Internet, you can watch anime free online 24/7 and with all the ideas from the new anime films, we will see more works influenced by this art form. Also, in the last years, fans have organized meetings all over the world. People normally go to these meetings to listen to experts and to meet anime artists. In these meetings, fans have started dressing like their favourite cartoons. So anime culture is not ending anytime soon.
